ABOUT THE GROUP

Creators, Sisters Performers

Holly Girlz is a sisterhood of four multi-hyphenate African American artists, actresses, and filmmakers, Amsara, Sanefer, Ariana, and Taia Holly, originally from Washington, D.C., now based in Los Angeles. What began as a music group has evolved into a fully realized, creative entity operating at the intersection of music, film/tv, fashion, and culture.

On Screen

Holly Girlz made their mark in film with two standout productions. Their collaboration with Bron Studios and Modern LaLa Land produced Till Now We Stand, a short film written by and starring all four sisters. They followed it with The Guest, a short film they wrote, directed, produced, scored, and starred in entirely - shot on iPhone - which won the ISA Award for Best First-Time Female Director and Best Alternative Film, and screened at the Micheaux Film Festival 2024.

In Music

Holly Girlz launches their next chapter with Holly Harmonies - a five-episode series of original music and original visuals debuting in 2026. The debut single, "Lungs Full," sets the tone: a genre-bending fusion of soulful 90s hip-hop and contemporary R&B, written by all four sisters, and rooted in the authenticity that defines everything they create.

What Sets Them Apart

Holly Girlz maintains full creative control across every project - writing, directing, producing, and distributing their own work. They are not a group waiting to be discovered. They are a production house, a creative collective, and a live act, building a body of work that speaks entirely for itself, while open to authentic collaboration.

Holly Harmonies is available now. "Lungs Full" is out now on all platforms.
