ABOUT THE GROUP

Creators, Sisters Performers

Holly Girlz is a sisterhood of four multi-hyphenate African American artists, actresses, and filmmakers, Amsara, Sanefer, Ariana, and Taia Holly, originally from Washington, D.C., now based in Los Angeles. What began as a music group has evolved into a fully realized, creative entity operating at the intersection of music, entertainment, and culture.

On Screen

Holly Girlz made their mark in film with two standout productions. Their collaboration with Bron Studios and Modern LaLa Land produced Till Now We Stand, a short film written by and starring all four sisters. They followed it with The Guest, a short film they wrote, directed, produced, scored, and starred in entirely - shot on iPhone - which won the 2025 ISA Award for Best First-Time Director (Female) and Best Experimental Short, and screened at the Micheaux Film Festival 2024.

In Music

Holly Girlz launches their next chapter with Holly Harmonies - a five-episode series of original music and original visuals debuting in 2026. The debut single, "Lungs Full," sets the tone: a genre-bending fusion of soulful 90s hip-hop and contemporary R&B, written by all four sisters, and rooted in the authenticity that defines everything they create.

"We create with intention, spirit, and always together."

What Sets Them Apart

Holly Girlz maintains creative expression across every project - writing, directing and producing. They are not a group waiting to be discovered. They are a production house, a creative collective, and a live act, building a body of work that speaks entirely for itself, while open to authentic collaboration.
